PACKERS WHIP BEARS AGAIN; SCORE 14 TO 0

GAME RECAP (GREEN BAY PRESS-GAZETTE)

(CHICAGO) - Making good use of a forward pass offense, despite a drizzling rain that made the ball hard to handle, the Packers smashed their way to the second win of the season over the Chicago Bears here Sunday. The final score was Green Bay 14, Chicago 0. The Packers played great football to turn back their traditional foes. They kept the play in Bear territory most of the time and, when the Chicagoans did get past the ten yard line, they put up such a stalwart defense of the goal that the Bears were halted in every department of play. The victory was costly for the Bays however, as it probably cost them the services of Red Dunn, veteran quarterback, who has led the team to eight consecutive victories this season in the National league. Red went out late in the final period with a dislocated shoulder after playing one of his greatest games in years. His handling of the team and choice of plays was superb and his throwing of passes with the wet slippery ball was phenomenal.

15,000 SEE GAME

A crowd of some 15,000 fans, including approximately 3,000 from Wisconsin, sat through the rain to watch the teams in action. When it was over they left content, however, as they saw one of the fiercest struggles ever staged at Wrigley field, Chicago. The first two quarters were battles of lines with the Packers having the edge in the first period and the Bears gaining a shade in the second stanza. Neither team could gain consistently on running plays or in the forward passing game because of the slippery condition of the field. Blood's punting gave the Packers the edge most of the time. He booted the wet ball for an average close to 50 yards the first half and continued his good work in the final two periods. The honor of winning the game, as far as touchdowns were concerned, came to Hurdie McCrary, who before this season displayed his football wares with the Georgia eleven. He scored both touchdowns for the Packers and in other way made life miserable for the Bears.

DUNN HEAVES PASS

A few moments before the first touchdown, Dunn dropped back to midfield and heaved a short pass over center to Blood. Johnny took the ball out of the air on the 35 yard mark and brought it to the 16 yard line before he was stopped. McCrary then picked up a yard at center and on the second play went far to the right to take a pass from Dunn that netted the first score. He evaded Senn, Bear half, and went over the goal line at a gallop. Then, a few minutes later, as if to demonstrate that the touchdown was no fluke, McCrary intercepted a Bear pass in midfield and raced half the length of the gridiron for the second touchdown. He showed his heels to the entire Bear team in making the dash and did some fancy stepping to keep from going out of bounds when he slipped on the ten yard line. Mac regained his feet without checking his pace, however, and aided by some splendid blocking by O'Donnell, Perry and other Packers, went over the goal line standing up. The ever-reliable Red Dunn placekicked for extra points after both touchdowns, sending the ball squarely between the uprights. To say that the 3,000 Wisconsin fans were overjoyed by the events, would be putting it mildly. They made enough nose to put to shame a crowd of 60,000 college fans.

USE AERIAL OFFENSE

The Bears found the Packer line a stonewall against running plays and had to take to the air for whatever gains they made. The passes connected occasionally and the Bears threatened the Packer goal a few times, but the Bays were always equal to the occasion and stemmed the tide in time to prevent scoring. Late in the game, as darkness started to spread over the field the Bears threw passes that carried them deep into Packer territory but the Bays checked the threat. Molenda intercepted a pass to stop one of the rallies, and a pass over the goal line ended the other attack. Holmer, Garland Graneg, Johnsos and Driscoll featured in the offense. The Bears blocked a punt on Lewellen late in the final period and then a pass to Driscoll out the ball on the Packer six-yard line. The Bears had four downs to make goal but found the task too hard. The fourth try was stopped on the one-yard line when Bo Molenda dove under the Bear front wall to halt Driscoll on a final desperate lunge. Blood kicked out of danger. Neither team could make much use of running plays, as the backs found it hard to keep their feet on the slippery field. Double pass plays were practically useless and cutbacks lost ground consistently.

BLOOD'S PUNTING FEATURES

Blood had the best of the exchanged of punts with Driscoll and Holmer and kept the play constantly in Bear territory. The Packers threatened early when a pass, Dunn to Blood, gave them the ball on the Bears' 18-yard line. Driscoll intercepted the next pass, however, and then punted out of danger. Again, a few minutes later, the Packers threatened, when Kotal made six yards over right tackle and Bo carried the oval to the 31-yard line before he was stopped. Bo almost got clear on the play going 14 yards over center but was stopped by Sternaman. He and Eddie Kotal then added seven yards on two plays but a pass went over the goal line and the Bears took the ball on the 20-yard line. The Bears made their early scoring threat of the first half late in the second period after an exchange of punts and a great run of 25 yards by Joey Sternaman gave them the ball in midfield. A pass, Holmer to Sternaman, then brought the ball to the Packers' 12-yard line. The first two plays netted six yards but the final pair of smashes netted nothing when the Packers refused to yield, so the Bays took the ball on downs and punted out of danger. Dick O'Donnell was instrumental in breaking up the final play to keep the Bears from making first ten. He smashed through to throw the Bear ball carrier for a yard loss.

BLOCKING IS FINE

Every Packer player that saw action turned in fine football. The blocking was fine at all times and the line charged hard and tackled clean. Blood, Dunn, Molenda and McCrary were outstanding in the backline because they saw most of the action and Dilweg, O'Donnell, Michalske, Kern and Darling featured on the line for the same reason. Ashmore, Perry and Hubbard also turned in fine accounts at tackle positions, while Earpe was a tower of strength in the center of the line the short time he played. Bowdoin played a whale of a game at guard smashing up every thrust at him. Dilweg and O'Donnell played the entire game at ends.

STERNAMAN IS STAR

Lewellen, Lidberg and Kotal also performed creditably the short time they were in the game. Joey Sternaman, Holmer and Paddy Driscoll were outstanding in the Bear backfield, while Nelson, Johnsos and Trafton turned in great games on the line. Nelson, playing his first game with the Bears, was a demon on defense, breaking up almost every play that came his way. The victory was the eighth straight National league win for the Packers and the ninth for the season. They have not been tied or defeated this year and hold undisputed possession of first place in the National league. They will play their final western game next Sunday in Chicago against the Cardinals and then invade the east to battle the New York Giants, Providence and the Philadelphia Yellowjackets, returning to the west for a game with the Bears on Dec. 8 to wind up the season.

LOOKING UP IN THE REALM OF SPORT - PRO GAME IS BEST

NOV 12 (Green Bay Press-Gazette) - The professional football game is beginning to get more adherents every day and nearly every close follower of the sport has come to realize the superiority of the professional style of play over the college brand. Arthur J. Schinner, sports editor of the Wisconsin News, is the latest student of football to come forth with some interesting information in regards to the play of college and football teams. Schinner covered the Packer-Bear game at Chicago last Sunday and had nothing but words of praise to offer after the game. His comments speak for themselves so we are quoting him. He says in part: "Those dear old college professors onto whom this professional football was more or less an anathema will have to get into a huddle again and deliver another broadside if they win to curb the very healthy growth of the pro game. Playing before 15,000 fans who braved pneumonia weather to see the teams perform, our own Green Bay Packers protected their hold in the top rung of the pro wheel Sunday by turning back the Chicago Bears in a spirited and exciting game. One of our illustrious townsmen, Red Dunn of Marquette, who had his shoulder dislocated during the melee, heaved one pass to Hurdis McCrary, who formerly performed for Georgia, snagged a loose pass by the Bears in the selfsame period and galloped fifty yards down the sidelines for another count to clinch the argument...The Bears fought back with lots of venom, missed three chances all told during the afternoon and otherwise, despite the heavy going and the steady drizzle under lowering gray skies, put up an exhibition which would have satisfied the most rabid alumnus bellowing for "Fight". There used to be much debate in the uppish ranks of our most select college circles as to the amount of vinegar these college grads injected into the post-graduate performances. We will admit that on occasion in the early days the contests gave the aspect of nicely attuned exhibitions in which no one tried very hard, that's all over now. These pro teams play with the fight and spirit of our most bitter collegiate rivals and as for the brand of football there really is no comparison. The difference between the pro game and the college game as we saw it Sunday was just the divergence between college baseball and professional baseball today and you know what that is. Derish thought that pro football will not live - it is not only going to live but will carry on to draw crowds which will rival out best collegiate congregations. It all depends upon the officials and the players and these boys seemingly have livened up to their opportunities. So would we say, if we're to halt the advance of Joe Carr and his minions we must appeal to our college leaders to go into seance and call down the thunderbolts of Jove or whoever deliver them upon the semi-pure professionals - their game today is so honest and so pure that even the Carnegie Foundation could find no taint as to motive and spirit." Schinner brings out contentions shared by all who follow the sport in an unprejudiced manner. His remarks are likely to bring forth a lot of howls from rabid college fans, who as a rule, probably never saw a pro game, but who are the first to condemn it. The real fans - those who watch and enjoy every pro game they can see - will sit back and pay little heed to rantings against the sport. They are more than satisfied with the pro game, and as a rule are disappointed in the average college game as they fail to see the smart football played in the post-graduate circuit.

LOOKING UP IN THE REALM OF SPORT - NOW FOR THE CARDINALS

NOV 13 (Green Bay Press-Gazette) - Opposition for the Packers in next Sunday's game will be provided by the Chicago Cardinals - the team that has given the local eleven more trouble this year than any other outfit. The Cardinals have been a stumbling block in the two games played earlier this season, and indications are that they will be a regular mountain to get over next weekend. The Packers won the early games, but had a lot of trouble doing it as the Cardinals made life miserable for the locals. With Nevers on the team backing up the line and providing a constant threat on the offense, the squad is always dangerous. It has a fine line and a fleet set of backs to work with the former Stanford star fullback. The injury jinx has begun to camp on the trail of the Packers and if it continues its devastating work there is no telling what the outcome may be. Red Dunn and Eddie Kotal were the latest paid of Packers to go on the shelf because of injuries. Dunn probably will be out for some time because of his wrenched shoulder, and Eddie is not expected to be available for work for at least ten days. Kotal's shoulder also was wrenched in the game with the Cardinals. Besides this pair, Tom Nash and Whitey Woodin are handicapped by injuries received in the Minneapolis game. Tom and Whitey are suffering with leg injuries that are likely to keep them on the sidelines next Sunday. The loss of Dunn is one of the hardest blows of the year to the Packers. Red is probably the smoothest working quarterback in the National league today, and it is going to be hard to find someone to take his place. Red Smith is available for the job, but as Smith has not had much work this year because of a leg injury, it is not sure whether he will be able to stand the pace. The injury has practically healed but a lot of work may lay him up again. Every player on the team had a lot of confidence in Red Dunn, as they knew he would find the opponent's weakness and take advantage of it. They knew he would call the right play at all times. Eddie Kotal also will be missed as he has been turning in some fine football this year. He is a good man on defense and can run and block with the best of them. Verne Lewellen had handled the quarterback job at times, but he naturally is not as smooth as Dunn. He functions best at a halfback position. Lew probably will be used at the quarterback post Sunday for awhile, however. Lew's injuries, sustained in an automobile accident, are not expected to keep him from playing. Capt. Curly Lambeau also may be in at the quarterback position for a while. Curly had handled the job in practice sessions, but has not been in a game this year. He finds it more effective to guide the teams from the sidelines, watching for any openings and choosing the men to play who he thinks will be best available for the jobs. Curly was a halfback originally but has worked in quarterback and fullback positions at time. Johnny Blood, Bo Molenda, McCrary and Lidberg all came out of last Sunday's game with nothing worse than minor bruises and bumps and will be ready to go up against the Cardinals. Molenda and McCrary, who proved fine on defense against a passing attack, are sure to see a lot of action, as Nevers is expected to use the air for gains. He throws a football accurately and swiftly and has some capable receivers in Don Hill, Bullet Baker, Mickey McDonald and Kassell who are going to bear watching. All of the Packer linemen came through the last game in good shape and will be ready for service again. They turned in some fine football against the Bears and can be counted on to be effective again. If the Packers can get over the Cardinal game, they are going to be a hard team to stop from winning the National league pennant. They are going to be right on edge for the game the following weekend against the New York Giants, and, if they turn back the Gotham stalwarts, Providence and the Yellowjackets should be easy. It will be a hard road filled with pitfalls, however. If further injuries to regulars should come, it will be a mighty hard task to make the grade.

GAME TO BE RE-PLAYED ON GRID-GRAPH AT C. C.

The Packer-Cardinal game will be re-played on the grid-graph board at the Columbus club auditorium tomorrow.

A special leased wire, direct from the Chicago White Sox field, will carry a detailed account of the game to the Auditorium and the plays will be flashed on the board.

A running description of plays also will be broadcast over the Vita-Vox public address system, and R. K. O. vaudeville acts will provide additional entertainment.

Music will be furnished by Lee Smith and his orchestra.

As the radio broadcast of the game is not expected to start until 3 p. m. a large crowd of fans is expected at the grid-graph show. Last Sunday more than 1,500 persons saw the game re-played here.

Molenda and McCrary, who proved fine on defense against a passing attack, are sure to see a lot of action, as Nevers is expected to use the air for gains. He throws a football accurately and swiftly and has some capable receivers in Don Hill, Bullet Baker, Mickey McDonald and Kassell who are going to bear watching. All of the Packer linemen came through the last game in good shape and will be ready for service again. They turned in some fine football against the Bears and can be counted on to be effective again. If the Packers can get over the Cardinal game, they are going to be a hard team to stop from winning the National league pennant. They are going to be right on edge for the game the following weekend against the New York Giants, and, if they turn back the Gotham stalwarts, Providence and the Yellowjackets should be easy. It will be a hard road filled with pitfalls, however. If further injuries to regulars should come, it will be a mighty hard task to make the grade.

GRID-GRAPH TO REPLAY PACKER, CARDINAL GAME

NOV 14 (Green Bay Press-Gazette) - When the Packers battle the Cardinals at Chicago Sunday in the final game before their eastern invasion, local fans again will be able to see the game replayed on the grid-graph board at the Columbus club. Every play of the game will be brought over a direct wire to the club and flashed on the board a few minutes after it takes place at the Chicago White Sox field. The Vita-Vox public address system also will be used to give interesting sidelights of the game. The Platten Radio company will provide the broadcast over the Vita-Vox. Although the Packers will have to face the strong Cardinal squad with a crippled team, Capt. Lambeau believes they can come out on top and be ready for the eastern invasion the following week. A victory for the Packers will give them a record of nine straight in the National league. The record is the best ever made by the Packers since they entered the National league.

As the Milwaukee road and C. and N.W. road are running special trains to Chicago, another large number of fans are expected to follow the team to the Windy City.

PACKER CORPORATION GETS ALL RECEIPTS

NOV 14 (Green Bay Press-Gazette) - Rumors to the effect that the Press-Gazette is operating the gridgraph which gives the play-by-play on the Packer out-of-town games are untrue. Stories also that the Press-Gazette attempted to prevent radio station WGN from broadcasting the Packer-Bear game last Sunday likewise are false. The Press-Gazette on November 7 telegraphed the Chicago Tribune regarding the Packer-Bear game broadcast, because it wanted to give the information to its readers and received the following reply: "Will not broadcast Packers' game here next Sunday. Management of Chicago Bears refuses permission to broadcast." The gridgraph is operated by the Green Bay Football corporation and every cent realized from the play-by-play game goes into the club's treasury. The Press-Gazette loaned the football club its gridgraph and does not realize one cent from its operation. In fact, Press-Gazette employees volunteered their services gratis to the football corporation in operating the board, in order to cut down the overhead. The Press-Gazette did this to assist the football club, not to realize any profit. Every cent of profit from the play-by-play at the Columbus club goes into the football treasury and the Press-Gazette has nothing to say as to its disposition, expenditure or anything else.

LAMBEAU EXPECTS HARDEST GAME OF YEAR SUNDAY

NOV 15 (Green Bay Press-Gazette) - Capt. Curley Lambeau of the Packer team said today that he expected the hardest game of the year Sunday when the team invades Chicago to battle the Cardinals. "The Cardinals have given us more opposition than any other team faced this year," the captain said, "and we have reports from Chicago are they are laying extensive plans for this game. Coach Scanlan is going to have his men in the best shape of the year and he is going to have them feeling that they are capable of whipping us. A team that goes into the game with that attitude naturally is a tough one to handle. Then there is the matter of cripples on our squad. I am not offering any alibis, but just making a statement of fact when I say our team is decidedly handicapped. Dunn and Kotal will not be able to play. Both have their arms in slings and it is doubtful whether they will be ready in time to see action against the Giants. Nash's injured leg is better, but it is not entirely healed and Whitey Woodin is suffering with a similar injury." Captain Lambeau indicated that he will use Blood in the safety position on defense and have Red Smith or Lewellen calling signals. He also may be at that position himself part of the game. The injuries Lew sustained in a recent automobile accident may handicap him to some extent, but they are not expected to keep him out of the game entirely. The game will be re-played here again on the Grid-graph, operated by the Packer corporation. The board will be set up in the main auditorium of the Columbus club. R.K.O. vaudeville acts and Lee Smith and his orchestra will furnish additional entertainment. Details of the play will be flashed on the board a few minutes after they take place at the White Sox field and the Vita-Vox system of broadcast will be used to give other bits of interesting information about the game. Reports from WGN Chicago say that the radio broadcasts of the game will begin at 3 p.m.

PRO GRID NOTES

NOV 15 (Green Bay Press-Gazette) - The Providence championship bubble went up in smoke during the past week as the Rollers took it on the chin three times besides playing a tie game with Stapleton. Four tilts in a week is altogether too much for any club...The New York Giants got even with Orange by the score of 22 to 0. Early in the season, these clubs battled to a goose-egg tied but Andrews & Co. showed the Skeeters lots of football in their league engagement last Sunday...The Chicago Cardinals busted into the win column twice within a week. In a "starlight" game at Providence, the Nevers-men came through with a 16-0 win while last Sunday the Chicagoans evened it up with Minneapolis, 8 to 0...If it hadn't been for a wobbly start, this Chicago club would be somewhere in the National league race. There is plenty of gridiron class to the machine and some of the veterans are cavorting around like two-year-olds...Bull Behman has earned himself another home in Frankford as a result of the Yellowjackets twin victory over Providence. Both games were nip and tuck, 7-0 and 7-6. The Hornets are now sitting in third place and going strong...Tony Latone, the Boston battering ram, found the going pretty tough against the Stapleton front wall and the Hubtown gridders were forced to bow, 14 to 6. The Stapes harvested on several breaks to keep the bacon at home...Jimmy Conzelman is doing regular time in monkey togs again. The veteran Providence manager dissatisfied with the way his quarterbacks were working, stepped into the breach and he played brilliant ball against Frankford...The Chicago Bears are in the east this weekend with a doubleheader NOV 15 (Green Bay Press-Gazette) - The Providence championship bubble went up in smoke during the past week as the Rollers took it on the chin three times besides playing a tie game with Stapleton. GREEN BAY TO PROTECT CLEAR SLATE AGAINST CARDINALS TODAY

NOV 17 (Chicago Tribune) - Green Bay's Packers will protect their undefeated record against the Chicago Cardinals this afternoon at Comiskey park. And the Cards are in a fair way to upset the Wisconsin eleven if previous scores are reliable. The Cardinals lost to the Packers at Green Bay, 9 to 2, in an early season game, but three weeks ago came within one point of tying, losing 7 to 6. With Nevers plunging in his best style and, with the help of one of the best defensive lines in the National league, the Cardinals may turn the trick this afternoon. Red Dunn, who was injured in the Packer-Bear game last week, is scheduled to start today. This is a tribute to the Cardinal force, for Dunn is not in good condition. Curly Lambeau, coach, would like to keep him out if the Packers can win without his passes, for he's thinking all the while of the title game with Benny Friedman's Giants next Sunday. Bullet Baker, in the backfield, and Stein at center will add strength to the Cardinals which they did not have in the last game. Baker's ability to slide off tackle for gains will increase the effectiveness of Nevers. Eddie Butts and Don Hill complete the Cardinal backfield. In reserve Coach Scanlon will have Gene Rose, who carried the burden of the offense in the victory over Minneapolis last week, Mickey McDonald and Cobb Rooney. However, the result of the game depends largely on how eager the Packer linemen are for the battle. Their offensive play last Sunday against the Bears left much to be desired for it took Dunn's passing to bring the first touchdown, but on defense they held the Bears within the ten yard line on two occasions. Verne Lewellen probably will bear down tomorrow and his kicking and running are essential to the Bay's attack. He scored the touchdown in the last game between the two clubs.
